COAL PRICES FIXED

FUEL ADMINISTRATION NAMES A SCHEDULE OF RATES

ARE IN EFFECT AT ONCE

Consumers Are Urged to File Ruling for Reference in Making Purchases.—Dealers Post Prices.

The following rules have just been promulgated by the U. S. Fuel Administration for the sale and delivery of coal:

First—All coal must be weighed over a standard scale and each ton must be 2,000 pounds.

Second—If the consumer desires to have his coal weighed over city scales it is the duty of the dealer to do so, the consumer paying the extra charge.

Third—The prices of all coal handled by the dealer must be posted in the office of each dealer. These prices to take effect at once. The dealer must post in a conspicuous place in his office, in readable type or figures:

First—The kind of coal he is selling.

Second—The price from car to consumer, delivered.

Third—The price from bin to consumer, delivered.

Fourth—The price from car to consumer, not delivered.

Fifth—The price from bin to consumer, not delivered.

In all cases these rules must be complied with and are to be enforced by the County Fuel Committee or chairman of those committees.

Where the overhead charges of $1.75 per ton has been allowed by the administration, the maximum charge—

$1.75 from the bin to the consumer.

$1.55 delivered from the car to the consumer.

$1.00 from the bin when the consumer does his own delivery.

80 cents from the car when the consumer does his own delivery.

This would make the following prices apply to Bevier, Ardmore, Huntsville and Adair County coal (excepting the product of the Star Coal Company):

Prepared sizes, delivered from the bins, $6.50.

Mine run, delivered from the bins, $6.25.

Screenings, delivered from the bins, $6.00.

Macon, Bucklin, Cainsville and the Star Coal Company's products of Adair county:

Prepared sizes delivered from bin, $6.95.

Mine run, delivered from the bin, $6.70.

Screenings, delivered from the bin, $6.45.

Iowa Coal: Appanoose, Wayne and Webster Counties:

Prepared sizes, delivered from bin to consumer, $6.85.

Mine run, delivered from bin to the consumer, $6.65.

Screenings, delivered from the bin to consumer, $6.05.

Other counties in Iowa for prepared sizes, 15 cents lower, or $6.70.

On other coals the margin not to exceed $1.75 gross. No deductions for shrinkage or other wastage to be charged to the consumer.

We trust the consumers of Nodawny county will file this ruling and prices so they will be able to know whether they are paying the proper prices for coal delivered.

In no case is the dealer permitted to substitute coal for the coal ordered without the consent of the consumer, and in all cases must fill orders according to specification or notify the consumer of his inability to do so.

In cases of violation of these instructions the Fuel Committee would thank the public to immediately notify them.

J. J. HEIFNER,
Chairman of the Fuel Committee of Nodaway County.

TAKEN TO ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL

Eugene Workman, Under Arrest for Failure to Register, Influenza Victim.

Eugene Workman, confined in the county jail under arrest on charge of failure to register in the first draft and with evading the officers, was taken to St. Francis hospital this morning suffering from influenza. The United States marshal's office at Kansas City was notified of Workman's arrest and an officer is expected within a few days to take him to Ft. Leavenworth.

Chas. E. Donlin of Hopkins, County Chairman of the United War Workers Campaign Committee, was here last night arranging for the organization of the forces who will soon ask the people of Polk township to contribute to this worthy cause. Our quota asked for by President Wilson is $15,000.00. Let us all not be neglectful when the committee calls on us.

BE READY—DO YOUR DUTY.

This seems a light task when compared with what lies before our BROTHERS, and OUR SONS OVER THERE. They are fighting for us—OUR FREEDOM, OUR HOMES. Let us all stand behind them at home, by subscribing liberally, thus contributing to their comfort and welfare. We are all right behind our boys, and it's up to us to let them know about it.

JAMES B. ROBINSON,
Chairman Polk Township.

NEW BOOK BY HOMER CROY

Maryville Writer Now in France with the Y. M. C. A., Tells How Moving Pictures Are Made.

Homer Croy of Maryville, is the author of another book. How the wheels go around in a motion picture studio is the subject of Mr. Croy's new book. The volume is entitled, "How Motion Pictures Are Made," and undertakes to explain things every film fan has wondered about. Whether or not the lady is really pushed off the cliff, if Charlie Chaplin really gets that million, and whether or not actresses weep real tears are all told in the books. According to Mr. Croy a good many of those tears the poor girl sheds are glycerine. Before she faces the camera in the big scene she gets her glycerine bottle. Then she is ready for her heartstrings to be torn.

The book tells how motion pictures are made at the bottom of the ocean, how animated drawings are made, how motion pictures of the war are made, how vision scenes are accomplished and the whole range of motion picture photography. The book is unusually well illustrated and shows in a way never before undertaken the wonders of the motion picture profession. It is published by Harper and Brothers.

Mr. Croy is in France with the American troops as a motion picture expert for the Y. M. C. A.

"From the Y. M. C. A. point of view, participation in the school is the outgrowth of the educational and recreational work which has been carried on in the military camps for African troops and carriers since early in 1916. The headmaster of the school is Vernon Nash, B. A., an American Rhodes Scholar, who came to Dar-es-Salaam and acted as secretary for the Central Y. M. C. Canning Sugar To Be Used in Limited Amounts.

A few days ago I notified the merchants to stop selling sugar for canning purposes, but today I received permission to issue cards for canning sugar in small lots, where I thought it would prevent waste of fruit.

I will therefore issue cards to those applying if I think the circumstances justify it, and the dealers of the county are instructed to honor any canning sugar cards presented to them which are O. K.'d by me.

TAKE 15,000 PRISONERS

SAVAGE BATTLE RAGES OVER FORTY-MILE LINE ON ITALIAN FRONT WITH ALLIES HAVING GAINED FIVE MILES—AMERICANS MAY BE THROWN INTO STRUGGLE

STEADILY GAINING

BRITISH AND ITALIANS HAVE CROSSED BOTH PIAVE AND VIDOR AND PUSH ON

FRENCH SMASH AHEAD

POUNDING THE APEX OF THE HUN SALIENT, THEY ARE ENCIRCLING BASE AT GUISE

ENEMY RETIRING TO RHINE

Americans in Argonne Sector Are Shelling Mezieres Railway With Some of the Biggest Guns World Has Ever Seen.

The same battle in which the Allies have already gained over five miles and have captured over 15,000 prisoners is still raging on the Italian front, and it is likely that American forces may be thrown into the struggle, it having been generally announced some weeks ago that American reenforcements were being sent to Italy.

The battle extends over a front of nearly forty miles and the Allies have crossed both the Piave and the Vodor rivers, extending their positions steadily on the eastern banks of both of these streams. So far the Italians and British have borne the brunt of the assaults.

There is a temporary lull on the British front although there is heavy fighting in the sectors held by the French and Americans. The French are steadily smashing in the apex of the German salient and are encircling the German base at Guise from both the south and north.

Operations of General Debeny's French army between the Oise and the Aisne rivers has been crowned with signal success and the Germans are rapidly falling back towards the Rhine river.

In the district northwest of Argonne the Americans have joined the French in their new attack, advancing over a mile. A violent artillery duel is raging on the American front. The Americans are keeping up a steady bombardment of the Mezieres railway with some of the biggest guns the world has ever seen.

A new drive has been started by British in eastern Turkey and reports of success have been received.

Rome, Oct. 29.—The battle on the Italian front continues fiercely with the Allies steadily gaining ground and according to a semi-official statement the battle which developed last Thursday with the new Italian drive has already cost the Austro-Hungarians six divisions (72,000 men). The Austrians were led by chosen officers and to inspire fear in the men machine guns were mounted in the rear to be turned on any who retreated. The present battle is looked on as a decisive struggle which has rested in the hearts and hopes of all Italy, the statement says.

London, Oct. 29.—Artillery activity and patrol encounters only took place on the British front last night.

"FLU" IS GAINING

HEALTH BOARD MEETS TO DISCUSS SITUATION

A CARD ON EVERY HOUSE

City Physician Ryan Orders That a Warning Notice Be Posted Wherever a Case May Be Confined.

With Maryville having been closed for over two weeks in the fight against the influenza epidemic, conditions today show little change for the better. Several new cases have been taken to St. Francis hospital and one other was reported to the office of Dr. F. M. Ryan, city physician, today. At a meeting last night of members of the health board the situation was discussed, but no action of any kind was taken. Mayor W. O. Garrett said today that the situation was not at all satisfactory and that while the disease might be checked this week, that there would be nothing doing next week as far as lifting the ban was concerned. "There have been too many exposures already," said Mr. Garrett, "and we will take no chances on others."

Dr. Ryan said this afternoon that a notice would be posted on every house where a case of influenza was known to be. It it learned that at several places where no warning cards have been displayed that delivery men, meter readers and others have been permitted to pass through rooms where there were patients sick with influenza.

While there have been few fatalities resulting from the disease, its treacherous nature makes it imperative that no means be overlooked that will help to stop it.

Mayor Garrett said it was not known certainly just how many cases there were in the city. The city physician's office has a record of between thirty-five and forty cases having been ordered quarantined. It has not been stated how many cases there are at St. Francis hospital.

Its the Same with Our Modern Knights.

Just now, particularly in the women's magazines, the influence of women over the patriotism and morale of their men in the war, is often a subject of lengthy writing. It recalls a paragraph which Ruskin wrote in "Sesame and Lilies." "You cannot think that the buckling on of the knight's armour by his lady's hand was a mere caprice of romantic fashion. It is the type of an eternal truth—that the soul's armour is never well set to the heart unless a woman's hand has braced it; and it is only when she braces it loosely that the honor of manhood fails."

One Maryville matron had been told that sulphur sprinkled in one's shoes was a sure preventive of "flu." So she liberally sprinkled husband's shoes with sulphur and rejoiced that he was immune. That afternoon she went to visit a friend who told her it was a fine remedy in dry weather but misery would follow if friend husband got his feet wet. It had been raining all day. Wife rushed home and dusted out all the shoes. Now she sulphurs or not as the weather reports indicates and husband's cure wavers between the wets and the drys.

MAKE UP TIME ON SATURDAY

Days Lost During Influenza Epidemic to Be Reclaimed by Added Day of Study During Week.

With the decision of the school board to make up on Saturdays the time lost by the closing of the schools following the influenza epidemic, every possible effort is being made to check the epidemic so that the ban may be lifted so that the schools may be reopened next week. Dr. F. M. Ryan, city physician, is much encouraged over the outlook today and believes that with the co-operation of every resident of Maryville in observing the rules that have been given that it may be sufficiently checked to permit of the closing order being lifted.

At the end of this week fifteen days will have been taken from the school calendar, meaning that fifteen weeks of school on Saturdays will follow. Unless something unforeseen arises the usual Christmas holidays will be given.

AXIOMS CREDITED TO BIG MEN

That of J. P. Morgan Has for a Long Time Been Considered the Most Famous.

"The way to meet trouble is to face it," was one of Theodore N. Vail's favorite axioms, according to the Wall Street Journal.

Harriman had two he was fond of quoting: "To dodge difficulties is to lose the power of decision," and "It is never safe to look into the future with eyes of fear."

"You can grip success better with bare hands than with kid gloves," is a Schwab-made maxim much to the point.

Ford's oft-repeated declaration, "Money is the most useless thing in the world," gives you a sidelight on his character.

It was James J. Hill who coined the phrase that it was not so much the high cost of living that affected the country as "the cost of high living."

One of the most famous of all modern business mottoes was that originated by J. P. Morgan, "You can't unscramble an omelet." There was deeper economic meaning in these five words than anyone realized at the time they were uttered, namely, when it was first whispered that the government contemplated a suit to dissolve the billion-dollar combination. War taught us with a vengeance that not only can you not unscramble an omelet but that to secure efficiency it is necessary to scramble many eggs into large omelets.

"Bonnie Doon."

Concerning the writing of "Bonnie Doon" there is an interesting story. The heroine of this song was a Miss Kennedy of Dolgarrock, who had been jilted by McDougal of Logan. The young woman is said to have taken the affair so much to heart that she found relief in the quiet waters that flow through the north country. The Don is a river of Scotland in Ayrshire which, after a course of 30 miles, falls into the Firth of Clyde. It was on the banks of this stream, near "Alloway's auld haunted kirk," that the poet was born, and naturally he has made it the scene of many of his poems.

The tune to which Burns wrote the words of "Bonnie Doon," was an old Scottish air called "The Caledonian Heart's Delight," and an effort has been made to trace it to a still older Irish air.

BEATS JEWELRY

By MAUDE HARKINS.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Well, mother," said pretty Grace Merrill as she settled herself down to breakfast Saturday morning, "what do you say to a trip to Boston this afternoon to see the Liberty Loan parade. That British tank must be some sight, and just think, I have not been in town since I did my Christmas shopping."

"Grace, dear, answered her mother, "you never could stand the jam of the crowd that will be there."

"We can stay until we get tired and then come home," persisted Grace. "It is such a beautiful day and such a big parade, I'd hate to miss it."

Grace Merrill had been taken ill New Year's day with pneumonia, and although nearly a month now since she had been allowed out of doors, she still remained pale and weak, her strength returning very slowly.

"No, dear," finally responded Mrs. Merrill. "I think we had better stay at home today. Get that sweater you started for Jack Ellis before you were taken sick and see if you can ever finish it."

"Jack will never wear that sweater," emphatically declared Grace. "I am going to send it to the Red Cross."

"Now, Grace," said her mother, "you know you like Jack Ellis even though you did give him his walking papers just because he sent you a bunch of violets for a birthday gift."

"Well, mother," answered Grace, "it was not as much as I expected from Jack, but I had my mind made up long before my birthday to tell him I intended to devote all my time to Red Cross work."

Two o'clock found them packed in the crowd, enthusiastically cheering, as the hundreds and hundreds of both men and women passed by. To Grace's surprise it was three o'clock before she realized it.

Suddenly her thoughts were turned from her tired feelings. What on earth was that? Could she be mistaken? No, there it was again. Someone's hand so soft and warm gently pressing hers. There, it pressed her hand again. The color which had once been absent from Grace's cheeks now dyed them a crimson red as she mischievously pressed back on the hand now tightly clasping her own. Finally she released her hand, thinking it best to find out to whom the hand belonged that had so affectionately been pressing hers.

Carefully turning, there to her overwhelming surprise stood Jack Ellis. Words failed her as Jack's hearty laugh revealed the pleasure he had taken in the flirtation. Mrs. Merrill's surprise was almost equal to Grace's, as she warmly greeted Jack, whom she had always thought to be a mighty fine fellow.

"Well, Grace," said Jack, "who ever dreamed of such good fortune as to see you. I've been down South on a business trip for the past three months and just got back this morning. How are you, anyway?"

"Quite well now, Jack," replied Grace.

"Yes," spoke up her mother, "quite well now; but this is her first trip to Boston since New Year's. She has been laid up with pneumonia and is only recovering from its effects."

To be sure, Jack felt badly to think he had not known Grace had been ill, as he could have written to her.

"Well," said Jack, "you are surely fortunate to have recovered so well."

"And now," added Mrs. Merrill, "I think we had better start for home."

"In my auto," said Jack. "If we can make our way out of this crowd, it will only take a few minutes to get it here. I will phone the garage and have them send it right along."

In a short while all three were comfortably settled in Jack's big car speeding homeward. Mrs. Merrill and Jack enthused over the parade, while Grace, lost in her dreams, forgot all else save that Jack was with her again. What awful long months they had been—but now it was all explained. He had been too far away to hear of her illness. The violets, too, were enough for a birthday gift, considering that they had been only friends. Before she realized it her home was reached, and as the auto came to a stop Jack asked if he might call the following evening. Grace readily consented, and as he helped her from the auto, again the soft hand pressed hers and the two laughed heartily.

Needless to say, Jack's sweater was soon finished, and it was not long until Grace had said "Yes" to that all-important question.

When Jack spoke of the customary engagement diamond, Grace, beaming with delight, said: "Jack, dear, I have a wonderful surprise for you. Something better than diamonds. I have chosen—a Liberty bond is what I wish for an engagement gift."

"You dear girl!" exclaimed Jack, as he affectionately embraced her, "how did you come to think of that?"

"Well," replied Grace, "you know the Liberty Loan parade was instrumental in reuniting us, and while the whole country is conserving I thought we should do our 'bit' too."

"Well done," said Jack. "It shall be as you wish."

The next morning he presented her with a $100 Liberty bond. Proudly Grace hastened to share her joy with her mother, who profusely complimented them on their patriotism, and today all three are planning for a mayflower wedding.

END OF A PERFECT GARDEN

Before You Say Your Last Goodbye to Your Garden Pay It One More Friendly Visit.

Before you say your last goodbye to your garden, pay it one more friendly visit. If there are any green tomatoes or last tiny cucumbers that have been overtaken by the cold weather, they may be made a delicious addition to the winter stores by being pickled or used in chow-chow and other pickle combinations.

The last of the eggplant, peppers, and okra are also worth canning and the last planting of spinach should not be allowed to go to waste. Gather it to the last leaf and dry before storing.

Perhaps you have left a few odd ears of corn that were late in filling out. Do you know how delicious these are roasted in the corn popper on the top of a hot stove? Corn of this kind doesn't pop to be sure, but the grains puff out and roast to a beautiful mouth-watering brown. Eaten as popcorn with butter and salt, or as a cereal with milk, it is a treat not only enjoyed by the children but the older members of the family as well.

And how about those Lima beans you have left on the vines to be burned as rubbish? Dried Lima beans are almost as good as fresh ones if they are well soaked and cooked thoroughly and served with milk or a little white stock.

String beans are good, too, even if they do look yellow and dry and seem to hang dejectedly to the vines. Pick them and store them away. Some winter's night when you want to treat your family to some steaming hot bean soup or some baked beans you will be thankful you saved these last few quarts that clung to the vines after the early frosts.

And now you come to the cabbage patch. You have cut off all the cabbages and put them away in the cellar. But do you notice that on almost every stem left standing in the ground there were several tiny sprouts?

Cut these off and cook them, then serve with a white sauce.

"Where in the world did you get these delicious Brussels sprouts?" your family will exclaim—and you may or may not share your secret with them.

Is there anything else left in your garden? Surely you are not going to let those muskmelons you were too late in planting and the cold weather has overtaken be burnt up as rubbish. Try some muskmelon pickles. Perhaps you will be as pleasantly surprised as the man who first took his courage in hand and ate a tomato.

WALKING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

"Believe me, I suffered from stomach and bowel trouble right. This weakened me so that I could scarcely walk. I could do no work. This was my condition when I started taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy on the advice of a friend. Now I am working every day an dfeel better than I ever did in my life. It is the only medicine that ever touched me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucosus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Adv.

Irvin Alkire Gets To Go To Church For First Time in France.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Alkire have received the following letter from their son, Irvin, in which he says:

Sunday, Sept. 8.

Dear Parents and All: * * * Am feeling fine. We had a nice rain here yesterday and again today. I went to church today. It was at the Catholic church and is was so crowded I couldn't get in only the side door.

Everything is very interesting here. Oxen pulling plows, not many horses. Most every lady wears wooden shoes, old and young. No four wheeled wagons or buggies, two wheeled is all either oxen or burro hitched to it. Always women driving it, not many men working for almost all are figthing. It was sure hard to talk or understand them at first but am getting so I can understand a little, now, by motions and gabbles. But they are sure fine people at that. They do everything they can for American soldiers. They have the best roads I believe I have ever seen, nothing but rock roads, even the lanes are rocked, but no automobiles. Just see one here and there and once in a while, except the U. S. cars. There are plenty of them here. * * *

Hoping to hear you are all well and best wishes to all.

Your son,
IRVIN D. ALKIRE.

Druggists! Please Note Vick's VapoRub Oversold Due to Present Epidemic

Tremendous Demand Last Few Days Has Wiped Out Excess Stocks That We Had Estimated Would Last Until Next January. Last Week's Orders Called for One and Three-Quarter Million Jars—Today's Orders Alone Amount to 932,459 Jars.

Big Shipments are En Route to Jobbers—Until These Arrive There May be a Temporary Shortage — All Deals Postponed—Buy in Small Lots Only.

RETAILERS CAN GET IMMEDIATE SHIPMENTS DIRECT BY PARCEL POST.

This advertisement is written on Monday, October 21st. It is directed to the attention of all distributors of Vick's VapoRub, both wholesale and retail. In an emergency such as the present epidemic—our duty—and your duty—is to distribute VapoRub in the quickest possible manner to those sections stricken by Influenza. We, therefore, call your careful attention to the following:

DANGER OF SHORTAGE IF SUPPLY IS NOT CONSERVED.

On October 1 we had on hand, at our factory and in twenty warehouses scattered over the country, sufficient VapoRub to last us, we thought, until January 1st, allowing for a 50 per cent increase over last year's sales, and not counting our daily output. This big excess stock had been accumulated during the summer months.

Then this epidemic of Spanish Influenza hit us—and in the last 10 days this stock has vanished. At first we thought this tremendous demand would last only a few days, but the orders have run:

Wed., Oct. 16	18,504 doz.
Thurs., Oct. 17	25,323 doz.
Fri., Oct. 18	39,256 doz.
Sat., Oct. 19	45,833 doz.
Mon., Oct. 21	77,705 doz.

Up to Saturday, October 19th, we have actually shipped for this month $400,284.10, or over two million jars of VapoRub.

THE PROBLEM NOW IS TO DISTRIBUTE VAPORUB QUICKLY.

Most of this tremendous quantity is still en route to the jobbers, but freight and express are both congested nowadays, and it may be some time before this supply reaches the jobbers. In the meantime, therefore, it is necessary that we distribute, as widely as possible, the stock that we are manufacturing daily, together with that now on the jobbers' and retailers' shelves, in order that it may get to the Influenza districts quickly. Our normal output is about 4,000 dozen per day. We are putting on a night shift, but it will be a little while before that is producing.

WHAT WE ASK THE WHOLESALE DRUGGIST TO DO.

Last Saturday we notified all of our jobbers, by Special Delivery, as follows:

1st—Deals and quantity shipments of all kinds are cancelled. Fill no quantity orders of any kind, whether taken by our salesmen or by you, own. Sell in small lots only.

2nd—Order from us in as small quantities as possible. If you are out we will try to ship a limited amount by Parcel Post or express, and pay the charges ourselves.

3rd—In order to make distribution still quicker, we will ship direct to your retail customers quantities not more than three (3) dozen 30c size at any one shipment.

4th—We are now out of the 60c size and will be for the next 10 days.

WHAT WE ASK THE RETAIL DRUGGIST TO DO.

Buy in as small quantities as possible. If you have any quantity orders, given the jobbers' salesmen or given to our salesmen, don't bother about them — no need to write us—it is absolutely impossible to fill these orders at this time. If the jobbers in your territory are out of Vick's VapoRub, we will ship you by Parcel ost, prepaid, quantities not more than three (3) dozen 30c size in any one order. Naturally, we can't open accounts at this time, so your check or money order for this amount must accompany order. Don't write us stating to ship through your jobber, as we then have to wait until we write this jobber and get his O. K. If you wish the goods to come thru your jobber, have him order them for you.

SNOWED UNDER WITH CORRESPONDENCE.

Our force has already been "shot to pieces"—twenty-four of our men are wearing Uncle Sam's khaki—and this recent rush has simply buried us. All our sales force has been called to help in the office and factory. We just mention this so you won't hold it against us if your wires and letters aren't answered promptly.

SPECIAL BOOKLETS ON SPANISH INFLUENZA.

We will send, on request, to any retail druggist, 100 or more little booklets, just issued, on Spanish Influenza, giving the latest information about this disease—its history—the symptoms — the treatment, and particularly the use of Vick's VapoRub as an external application to supplement the physician's treatment.

NEW WAYS TO USE VAPORUB.

In addition to the usual method of using VapoRub—that is, applied over the throat and chest and covered with hot flannel cloths—our customers are writing us daily telling of their success in using VapoRub in other ways, particularly as a preventive. They melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors arising, or melt it in a benzoin steam kettle. Where the steam kettle is no tavailable, VapoRub can be used in an ordinary tea-kettle. Fill the tea-kettle half full of boiling water, put in half a teaspoon of VapoRub from time to time—keep the kettle just slowly boiling and inhale the steam arising.

According to a bulletin just issued by the Public Health Service, Dr. Stiles, of this Service, recommends that the nose be kept greased as a preventive measure against the Influenza germs. For this purpose VapoRub is excellent.

LOST SCULPTURE OF REIMS

Works of Art of Unfortunate City That Rivaled Those of the Greek School.

Four years ago the sculpture of Reims was one of the three great, original groups in France, the others being Chartres and Amiens. How they escaped, heaven knows, but they did. Saint Denis, Senlis and Laon, equal in beauty and in quality, fell easy prey to one set of sodden savages or another until only a few precious fragments are left, mutilated almost beyond recognition. Paris has been further degraded by barbarous restoration, and therefore Chartres remains as the exemplar of the high hieratic school of the twelfth century, Amiens of the supreme fulfillment of the thirteenth; for the great gray cliffs of Reims, with their matchless flowering of inconceivable, incredible statues, have been blasted by shell and calcined by fire, and the exquisite sculpture of all the craftsmen of France has crackled, crumbled and fallen into indistinguishable dust.

I think it was the greatest sculpture of the middle ages; greater than Chartres, for this was merely a triumphant detail of architecture; greater than Amiens, since it was less cleverly naturalistic, more Greek in its proportion and line, and more vital and varied in its vivid characterization, writes Ralph Adams Cram in the Yale Review. Medieval sculpture is often dealt with as inferiority, patronizingly commended as all very well, considering the time. I regard it as a school of sculpture that stands on the same level with that of Greece. Here at Reims were many schools, many masters and each following had its own personal qualities. In all, however, we find a truly Greek quality of line and composition, a sense of dignity and power that is unique, vivid and convincing characterization, and an indwelling devotion and religious passion that find their match neither before nor since.

FROWNED ON ALL LUXURIES

At Many Times In Different Periods an Effort Has Been Made to Enforce Simplicity.

Luxury taxation is by no means a new idea. In Rome, more than 2,000 years ago, the Oppian law enacted that "no woman should possess more than half an ounce of gold, or wear a dress of different colors, or ride in a carriage in the city or within a mile of it except on occasions of public religious ceremonies." In 187 B. C. a law was passed to limit the number of guests at entertainments.

A limit was set on the cost of funerals and of funeral monuments. And there would certainly be some outcry in this country against the methods of Julius Caesar, who had officers stationed in the market place to seize provisions forbidden by law, and sent soldiers to feasts to remove illegal eatables!

In our own country, the fourteenth century found extravagance in dress rampant, and during the reign of Edward III laws were made to restrain it. Food, also, has been regulated by old English laws. In the reign of Edward II a proclamation was issued against extravagant catering in the castles of "great men."—London Tit-Bits.

Everything Was All Right.

One of the policemen who took part in the bandit fight on Montgall avenue the other day called his home immediately after hostilities ceased, to assure his wife that he was not injured. His wife was in the apartment upstairs, but his mother-in-law was there and answered the telephone. She took the message and then went upstairs to reassure her daughter. "Now, don't get excited," she said, "for there's nothing serious. Now everything will be all right, but you know the police have had a big fight with some train robbers out by the Belt line, and your husband—"

The wife slowly, softly, slipped from her chair in a dead faint. Ten minutes later she was revived. Then she said: "Well, go on, tell me the rest."

"—And he called up to say he was all right, and will tell you about it at supper time."—Kansas City Star.

Electric Cast Iron.

A development of war conditions in the steel industry of the United States has been the demonstration of the possibility of making pig iron and iron castings direct from steel scrap in an electric furnace—something never accomplished before. It has been claimed that such iron, cast in the form of castings, is far superior to the same castings made from ordinary pig iron, melted and cast. Tests of this new iron recently made at Columbia university demonstrate its high quality. Its tensile strength was shown to be 40,730 to 45,030 pounds per square inch, much higher than that of ordinary cast iron.—Scientific American.

Frog Catcher Enlists.

Though Fritz is on the jump, his fate now is all the more certain. Peter Charon of New Haven, official frog catcher for the laboratories at Yale university, has enlisted in the marine corps.

"There isn't much doing in the frog line now," says Charon. "Before the war you used to hear them, churning out their cries of 'Jug of rum! Jug of rum!' but now you can't find any of the creatures down our way. Besides there's no market since the laboratory men have all gone to war."

Charon is six feet and one inch in height. The marines consider him a good addition to their fighting corps.

BAT AT HOME EVERYWHERE

Species of the Race Vary as Widely as Their Habits—Not Especially Deadly to Mosquitoes.

As a group bats are of world-wide distribution except in the inhospitable polar regions. They are real mammals and present an extraordinary variation in size, from tiny little creatures, almost as small and fragile as butterflies, to the huge fruit bats, with a spread of wings like that of a wild goose.

The heads of bats are strangely sculptured, some being smoothly contoured and shaped like those of little foxes; others appear like miniature bulldogs; and still others have curious cartilaginous nose-leaves upright on the muzzle. Some have the entire face molded into a hideous mask repulsive to look upon.

Their habits are equally varied to meet special conditions: Some are eaters of fruit alone; others feed solely upon insects, while others bite other mammals, including man, for the purpose of drinking the oozing blood, upon which they subsist. All are nocturnal, but some appear late in the afternoon, before the sun sets. Most species, however, wait until the shades of night have covered the earth.

Throughout the world the majority of the species of bats feed upon insects, but there are many fruit eaters. The teeming insects and plant life of the tropics afford a never-failing food supply, and the center of abundance of these animals is found there. In some localities between 20 and 30 kinds of bats exist, with such vast numbers of individuals that the bat population far outnumbers all other kinds of mammals combined.

And alas! it is not true that bats prefer a diet of mosquitoes!

HAS DOUBLE STEERING WHEEL

Inventors Making Interesting Tests With Vessel That Makes Use of a Two-Blade Rudder.

Some interesting tests have been made recently with a dual rudder, illustrated in Popular Mechanics Magazine, in an attempt to demonstrate the possibility of eliminating the reversing turbines of ships. The action is described as follows:

"For normal cruising the plates are folded together. A double steering wheel is employed. When locked, the two members turn as one. At other times, when the two wheels are thrown in opposite directions, the leaves of the rudder are adjusted to desired angles. The equipment gives a boat a brake that is quick-acting; it enables reversement of direction with the engine running full speed ahead, and permits a craft to be turned in its own length. The demonstration boat is able to reverse direction from full speed ahead in nine seconds."

Seeing, Hearing and Tasting!

The resident minister of a very small Western town is quite an enthusiastic worker for Uncle Sam, and at a recent Red Cross benefit social was making a very patriotic speech while selling Thrift stamps.

An old gentleman in the crowd had just returned from a visit to a larger town where patriotism—and some other things—were more plentiful, and being in a very convivial mood, he was buying stamps with more abandon than the rest of the crowd. The preacher, not recognizing his condition, and feeling that such a show of patriotism ought to be commended, paused in the sale to remark: "Now just look at Brother J—. He has just returned from our neighboring town, and he saw and heard what they have over there."

A wag in the rear of the building called out, glibly: "You bet he did! And he not only seen it and heard it, but he's brought some of it back with him."—Indianapolis News.

Marshal Foch a Golfer.

"In the days before the war Marshal Foch was an enthusiastic golfer," says the London Express, "and took special lessons from a professional. He played a slow and cautious game, with a very useful handicap of 12. He had quite an amusing hatred of losing balls, and in the evening after dinner would stroll out with a bag and collect any he could find. Once he came in triumphantly after a long walk in the dusk with quite a collection found with the aid of an electric flashlight. He used to regret that his countrymen did not take to the game with any enthusiasm."

Why Prices Rise.

This is an actual occurrence in Columbus. A woman who had occasion to use a common drug in making a home preparation, bought a pound of it at a drug store. She had often bought it for seven cents a pound, but this time was charged 22 cents.

"How is that?" she asked the proprietor. "I never paid more than seven cents a pound for that anywhere before."

"But," expostulated the druggist, "prices have gone way up. Why, I have to pay seven cents a pound for that myself!"—Columbus Dispatch.

The Pest.

American soldiers speak of the louse as a "cootie." The French fighter calls it a "toto," and the British a "coddler." Among all the armies the pests are known as "trench rabbits" or "seam squirrels." The significant thing is that never are they called lice. The soldier has the same horror of vermin that he had in civilian life and the very name "louse" carries the suggestion of degradation.

WHEN THE ANNAMITES FEAST

Their Camp Cooks Prepare Meals Which Are Unlike Any Served Up to the Other Allies.

During a day of repose I took occasion to visit an Annamite camp, writes Le Roy Baldridge in Asia Magazine. A bit of French landscape has been turned into Annam. Here one finds neither "Adrian" barracks nor old stone farmhouses with roofs of red tile. Instead are the pagodas of the Orient, artistically fashioned of trees, bamboos, branches and straw. As we pass the kitchen we see at once that the dejeuner being prepared is not for Frenchmen. Most prominent is a kettle three feet in diameter containing rice. Which is the one thing a Poilu cannot be forced to eat! Before the cook clamps back the lid we notice in the center of the white steaming mass a bowl of onions for flavoring. Squatted near by, the assistant cook with his couteau—a broad-ended, curved Chinese blade two feet in length—chops up meat into little squares as he chants something with an appropriate rhythm the while. A driver comes for his meal. The cook drops a ladleful of rice on one side of the extended plate and on the other a little cube of boiled meat and in the center a splash of sauce. The sauce is the mystery. No Frenchman could explain it to me except in terms of violent gesticulation. Then instead of taking out a "couteau d'Apache" as all the rest of us do, and starting by slicing off a hunk of dark army bread from the loaf which every Poilu keeps concealed somewhere about his person, our yellow comrade produces two sure-enough chop sticks from an inner pocket, and, sitting down on the running board of his truck, enters upon that fascinating feat of dining against the laws of gravity.

AFTER "ZEMPSHUN" MONEY

Darky Had Somewhat Misunderstood the Situation, But He Was Used to Disappointment.

Trailed by his wife and 11 children, ranging from stout cornfield hands to bow-legged toddlers, an old darky made his way from office to office in the federal building at Asheville, N. C., seeking his "zempshun."

Finally reaching the city exemption board, he said: "Boss, I done come for my zempshun money." The clerk did not understand him. "You mean your pension money, don't you?" queried the clerk. The old man shook his head. "No, sir, boss; I mean de $2,000 de gubment 'lows married folks."

Further inquiry disclosed that the old man had heard some one say the government allowed the head of a family $2,000 exemption under the income tax law, and he understood this to mean that the government would pay him $2,000.

He accepted the news that there was nothing coming to him philosophically.

"Jest like atter tuther wah," he remarked. "Dey say den us darkies gwine fer to git a mule apiece and we ain't nebber got none."

Plane Shapes Confusing.

American battleplanes are now beginning to make their appearance on the western front, according to the Scientific American, and it is of interest to note the changes undergone by well-known types of domestic machines. Certain of our machines have taken on characteristics of German battleplanes, such as the tapered front, propeller pot and fishlike fuselage, while others have taken on the characteristics of the French Spad and the British Sopwith fighter. The American machines in several instances are inclosing the V-shape engines, leaving only the exhaust pipes showing, and these are grouped into one pipe on either side, which leads back and ends in a perforated taper. One well-known type of American airplane has been so materially changed of late that it is at first confounded with the French Spad; the engine is entirely inclosed; the wing arrangement is similar to the Spad; and the strut arrangement is identical to the French machine.

Ireland Lives in Plenty.

Although only a three-hour boat trip separates England and Ireland, there is as much difference as between day and night in the two islands, as far as food is concerned, says the New York Sun.

Ireland is not rationed voluntarily or otherwise, and there is plenty of everything, with the exception of sugar. In respect to food it is more pleasantly situated than the United States or England, because prices have not advanced as they have in America, and are no higher than in England, where the ministry of food not only rations, but controls prices. Ireland always has sent quantities of meat and dairy products to England and still is doing so.

Amazing Nerve.

An elderly British army officer is a tester of parachutes, and it is his almost daily business to go up in observation balloons to a height of some thousands of feet and then to throw himself out with a parachute for a lifeline. Sometimes he falls nearly 1,000 feet before the parachute opens. He may land in the oddest places, and the other day he and his parachute came down in the middle of a busy street, and he narrowly escaped being run over by a motor-omnibus. There was also an occasion when he found himself upon the roof of a house with no visible means of getting down therefrom, and for some little time his position was precarious.

DOING HIS BIT

By LAURA J. NUNN.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Early in the great movement for the conservation of food Jessie had broached the subject to her husband. He had acquiesced most heartily. Certainly he would be glad to "do his bit." "All I want is the plainest of food," he said. "And your cooking would make the worst concoctions delicious!"

For a while all went well. Delicious dishes based on rice or spaghetti, with nourishing meat sauces, appeared on the table, and occasionally an entire meal of vegetables. And John had eaten them, first with noisy approbation of the economic value of the movement, then with a great parade of patriotism, but lastly in a pregnant silence that spoke volumes of martyrdom. Several times he had telephoned that he would not be home for dinner—detained by business.

And then one evening the cat was out of the bag. John had arrived home almost an hour earlier than usual, laden down with packages. Into the kitchen he strode and slammed them noisily down upon the tub-tops. "There!" he said as he untied a string and disclosed a huge steak; "there's a piece of meat. That's steak! Beef! Allow me to introduce you, madam, to a meal. I have had all the makeshifts I want around here and I am off the war stuff for good and all! Why," he continued virtuously, "all I want is simple food. A good piece of meat, some vegetables, some good bread and butter, and a dessert. No frills to that. And I'm going to have them."

Secretly Jessie was just as well pleased. The "makeshifts" had meant much extra work for her, and it must be admitted she did not particularly enjoy made dishes. She, too, liked "good plain food."

So matters jogged along until John produced a pair of tickets for a lecture on "Hooverizing." "It is tonight," he said. "We will have to go—and thank goodness it is with a clear conscience that we can hear him hand it to those people who have not been doing their bit."

"Well, we certainly have!" laughed Jessie.

An hour later, from their comfortable seats in the hall, they looked at each other in consternation. But the speaker's words still flowed on in earnest appeal, and there was not time for discussion.

"Hundreds of you good people would tell me if I asked you, that you are doing all you can," he said. "You will say that you have cut out everything but necessities. You are using nothing but plain food—and plain food with you means the best roasts of beef, lamb and pork; the finest steaks and chops; the whitest bread you can obtain, and the 'simplest' desserts—usually pies or cake which use up the white flour.

"Do you honestly think you are doing your best? This war will be won or lost by food. Don't forget that for one minute. Most of you, in your comfortable houses, feel that the war is a remote thing which can never touch you. You give five minutes of pity to the starving children in Belgium or Poland, and then sit down to heaping plates of food and promptly forget all about them. You have a vague sense that everything will be all right. Uncle Sam is behind us, and of course that means that nothing can harm us. Other countries have suffered. But America? Impossible! And so you go on day by day, grumbling a little at the increased cost of living and continuing to live exactly as you did before the war.

"Many of you think because you have bought a Liberty bond you have done 'your bit.' What right have we to give a 'bit' while our men in the army give their all? So must we. We cannot all go to the front; some of us must stay here to keep things going. But we can and we must do without the things we like; must sacrifice what we most enjoy to help win the cruelest, most horrible war in the history of the world.

"Begin at home—now—to save the foods that our men at the front must have. Cut out the roasts, the steaks, the pies and puddings. What if you don't like war bread? Or macaroni? Or beans three times a week? Do you think the men in the trenches 'like' it—especially now when winter is at hand?

"Looking at it from this point of view the housewives of the country are of even more importance than its army. For of what use would be an army without food?

"And get away from this idea of doing your 'bit.' Go in all over. A 'bit' is not enough. ALL of the BEST of you is necessary. YOU can win this war!"

In silence John walked home beside his wife. She was doing some deep thinking but wisely refraining from saying anything—yet.

Finally it came out. Was it John's usually hearty, loud voice that spoke? "We'll begin tomorrow, Jess," he said huskily. "I guess we have not done much thinking—I've been wishing all along that I could do something. Envied the fellows in uniform and all that, you know. Even if I can't wear the khaki I can do something. How about it, old girl?"

And Jessie, as she thought of the ruined houses, the blind and crippled men, the starving women and children in Europe, gave thanks that she could do her part to aid the men who would fight to make such conditions impossible in America.

MINIMUM HOG PRICE $17.50.

November Basis Made by Hoover and Hog Commissioners.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Hogs in November will bring a minimum price of $17.50 a one hundred pounds on a basis of the Chicago market, it was agreed at a conference of Food Administrator Hoover and the hog commissioners of the Agricultural Advisory Board.

The new price is for daily averages of packers' drives and will be contingent on commission men and producers co-operating to maintain a normal supply.

BOLCKOW — — MISSOURI

Taylor County's Most Sensational Poland-China Sale

To be held on the Bowers' farm, 3 miles west of Conway and 3 miles east of Gravity, Ia., on the Wanbonsie Trail,

Friday, November 1st

40 Head of the Biggest Young Boars of the Season.
40 Boars averaging 300 lbs each.

34 head sired by my 12-inch boned boar, Bowers' Mammoth Joe. 6 head sired by Bess Big Orange and Levi's Giant, a brother to the largest sow in the world.

Now, Farmers and Breeders, if you want a young boar with plenty of bone, length, size and big type qualities, you will find them in this sale.

I make it a study of breeding them as large as they grow. I challenge them all to show me more size, bone and big type qualities.

Now, this is a strong statement. But I believe I have the proof. The largest Poland-China hog show that was ever held in Iowa was held at Cedar Rapids Sept. 30 to October 5, 1918. It was the 3rd National Swine Show. A National Hog Show—the largest and best were entered in this show. I won the honor of having the heaviest boned boar at the show. I also had the largest brood sow ever shown of any breed. It was Longfellow Giantess, weighing 925 lbs. After 48 hours on the railroad I showed the four largest spring boar pigs, wt. 1250 lbs. The largest at the show. I also had the heaviest boned spring pigs. By having the largest sow and largest spring pigs and having the heaviest boned herd boar and heaviest boned boar pigs, I won the $100 special and 6 other ribbons. Among 30 junior spring boars from 10 different states, I won 4th place in hot competition.

Now, remember I have the hogs. Come November 1st and see them. Catalogues are now ready. Write for one by return mail.

Public Notice

To any person that wants to make more money, come to Wyoming and buy you a farm where the crop in one year will pay for the land and where one acre put in potatoes will pay for five acres at the present price; where you and your family will be healthy and you are sure to prosper if you work and try like you have to in Missouri. Now I know what I am saying, as I lived here in good old Missouri for 18 years and always tried hard to get us a home, but when I left here three years ago I owed over $1,600.00 of debts here that I could not pay, but have paid them since I went to Wyoming. I am only telling you this to encourage you to come. We have good schools good churches, good water and climate, and as good people as you can find anywhere. I have land I can sell from $15.00 per acre up to $50.00 per acre. Close to two good railroads. Have got a 2,400 acre ranch at $25.00 per acre that is sure a bargain.

Now the first reason I want you to come to Wyoming is, because if you come and buy a farm I get a small commission out of it, but that is not the best reason. I know I will be doing you a favor and know you will always be glad you come. Now, in case some stranger to me should read this ad. I will give you as reference some of the best men in Nodaway County or any other county. In Parnell, James Barber, W. N. Morgan, C. C. Evans, A. J. Roof, Bill Jackson; Ravenwood, Mo., S. E. Wells, and V. O. Hunt; Barnard, Mo., George Cole, banker; Gaynor City, Mo., Charlie Lewis; Sheridan, Mo., C. C. Hall; Hopkins, Mo., Albert Mutti; Maryville, Mo., Nathaniel Sisson, U. S. Wright, Henry Wright, James Robinson. For any information about this county, if you can't see me when I am here, write me at Carpenter, Wyo. I took three men out with me two weeks ago and sold all three a farm. Would be glad to have you talk to any of these men: Cecil Talkington of Parnell or Elmer Talkington and Pete Mumford of Bedford, Iowa. We raise corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, speltz, flax, millet, cane and potatoes, alfalfa and good gardens. Poultry of all kinds do well. Stock of all kinds do well, especially hogs, as hog cholera is unknown.

The only way you can realize what a good county we have is to come and see it. For further information, write—
